General Jeffrey Amherst Of The Indian Wars Of 1754

Fought Between 1754 And 1763

The Indians Were Led By A Chief Pontiac

The Pontiac Rebellion

Pontiac, also known as Obwandiyag, was an Ottawa leader who became famous for his role in Pontiac's Rebellion (1763–1766), an American Indian struggle against the British military occupation of the Great Lakes region following the British victory in the French and Indian War. In May of 1763, Pontiac and 300 followers attempted to take Fort Detroit by surprise. His plan was foiled, so Pontiac laid siege to the fort, and was eventually joined by more than 900 warriors from a half-dozen tribes. Pontiac's influence gained stature in the Illinois and Wabash country as he continued to encourage resistance to the British.

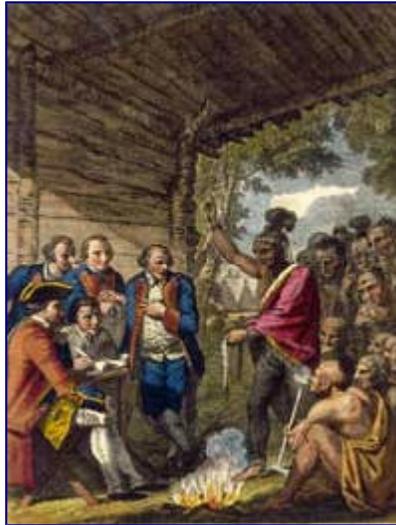

British General Jeffrey (Jacob) Amherst Give The Indians Blankets Infected With Smallpox

After the war, General Jeffrey Amherst was put in charge of Indian affairs, and soon began cheating them for his own benefit. Amherst cut off their rations and ammunition needed for their hunting. Chief Pontiac again united the tribes and committed a surprise attack on Fort Detroit.

The hostility between the British and Native Americans after the French and Indian War led to one of the first documented attempts at biological warfare in North American history. In response to the 1763 uprising known as Pontiac's Rebellion, Amherst used blankets infected with smallpox as a weapon for racial extermination

Amherst Deliberately Infected Indians With Smallpox

His subordinate, Colonel Henry Bouquet, infected Native Americans with smallpox through gifts of blankets that had been exposed to the disease.

Chief Pontiac Was Assassinated

After the war, Pontiac opposed Amherst being chief of Indian Affairs, and also suspected him of ownership in various shady trading posts. In 1769, the Jewish General Amherst had an assassin kill Pontiac.

Jews Have Been 'Well Poisoners' Since The Beginning Of History

In the 1300s, it was the Black Plague, and in 1915, it was the Armenian Genocide, and in 1933, Zionists used the Ukrainian Famine to kill the opposition. This doesn't even take into effect the countless Communist genocides.

When the economic collapse does hit, the Zionists will weed out American dissidents just like they did in Soviet-era Russia. That's where the Bolshevik/Communists killed 45 million, over a thirty-year period . They started by marching the intelligentsia to the forests and shooting them in the back of the head, then famines, and next were Stalin's Gulags.

If you fast forward to today, you see the "Swine Flu" Influenza Pandemic in the making. The Arab people will think current-day Baghdad and Lebanon of the Israeli occupation-era was utopia compared to what the coming pandemics will do to them.
